He's looking quite satisfied with himself, and for good reason. BEEP BEEP THE ROAD RUNNER is coming out in the next issue with a giant pull-out poster. Watch for it!

STAR REPORTER PAULINE PERIL HITS NEW HEIGHTS ON DAREDEVIL STORY

BIG POSTER ISSUE

Walt Disney Presents THE SLEEPING BEAUTY, the story of Princess Aurora who falls under the spell of the Evil Fairy. It's one of the most enchanting stories of all-time, and you will fall under the spell of this Walt Disney issue with its beautiful pull-out poster.

THE YOUTH TRAP

Two engineers from the Star Ship Enterprise have been reduced to five-year-olds, and with them is a teen-ager, Dr. McCoy! And now, little by little, Captain Kirk and Mr. Spock are getting younger . . . and younger . . . in next month's STAR TREK.

BIG CHIEF TUBBY

He's all set for a scalping party as he lures Lulu and her friends into an ambush. The ladies have ideas of their own, though, and Tubby is in danger of losing his feathers. It's more fun with LITTLE LULU AND TUBBY IN SUMMER CAMP.

A GHOSTLY TREAT

That's what you will find in the new RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT! — True Ghost Stories. You're in for a rattling good time!

VILLAIN HOPES SHE'LL FALL DOWN ON JOB

Pauline Peril, ace reporter on her Daddy's paper, The Daily Noose, puts her neck out covering the fantastic feats of stuntman Scareless Harry. Where Scareless goes, Pauline follows, which is fine with editor Snodgrass McViper who stands to inherit the newspaper with Pauline out of the way. Give her enough rope, sneers McViper, and The Daily Noose will be his. Read all about THE CLOSE SHAVES OF PAULINE PERIL next month.

SMOKEY IS MOOSETAKEN

Smokey plays Cupid to lovelorn Myron Moose who keeps hanging around Miss Beaver who naturally is most upset. Everything turns out happily for Myron and Miss Beaver, but not the way Smokey had planned. There's a forest full of chuckles in the next issue of SMOKEY BEAR.

MERLIN IS MORE DOWNCAST THAN AN OLD ADMISSION STUB!

HMM... I CAN USE THAT TALENT IN MY ACT!

TWIRL YOUR PARTNER...
AW-HAW-W...

HEY... QUIT PULLING
MY STRING! I'M NO
PUPPET!

IN A WAY YOU
ARE, SECOND BANANA!

I NEVER RELEASED YOU FROM YOUR CONTRACT TO ME!

ER... I BUSTED
OUT ON MY OWN,
IT'S TRUE!

BUT I HATE THE TASTE OF ROTTEN TOMATOES MIXED WITH BOOS!

TISH-TOSH! A THING OF THE PAST, PAL!

I DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE A SKILLED PUPPETEER!
I'M GOING TO USE YOUR TALENT IN A
SENSATIONALLY NEW TRICK!

WELL, I'LL GIVE YOU
ANOTHER
TRY, BIG GUY!

AND SO, THE BRAIN OF THE ACT GOES DOWN THE ALLEY IN A BAG...

AND IT ISN'T UNTIL THE NEXT ACT THAT MERLIN GETS WISE...

SUCCESS IS SUCH A FLEETING THING!

AS MERLIN PREPARES TO VACATE VAUDEVILLE VIA THE BACK DOOR...

Papacito was returning from the village where he had gone to purchase a new red shawl for Mamacita to wear to the fiesta. As he passed the corral, he noticed that Little Pancho Vanilla and his friend Paco were pretending it was a bull ring.

"Aha, toro! Aha!" Pancho, the pretend matador, cried as he twirled a red bandana. Paco, the pretend bull, scraped his feet on the ground, bellowed fiercely, and charged.

"Olé, muchachos!" Papacito cheered as he opened the gate and entered the corral. "Eet ees good to see you practice for the bool ring. When I was a boy, I practiced every day until I could use the cape better than any matador in all of Mexico," he bragged. "Eef I only had my cape weeth me, I could show you how a real expert can tame the bool," he continued boasting.

"Why can't you use that red material you put over there?" Little Pancho Vanilla asked, anxious to show Paco what a great matador his father was.

"Oh, that. That is a shawl for Mamacita. Eet ees much too flimsy for a matador's cape," Papacito stammered, hoping this excuse would satisfy the boys. "Another time, when I have a real cape and a real bool, I weel show you," he announced, trying to maintain his importance and still not have to prove himself in action.

Little Pancho Vanilla turned away to hide his disappointment, and, to his horror, he saw that their own bull had gotten loose and was charging out of the open barn door straight for them.

"Papacito, the bool!" he cried, pointing toward the barn.

Papacito forgot his brave words about facing a live bull. "Run for the gate," he ordered and started to run, too.

They had reached the safety of the gate when Papacito discovered that, in his haste, he had left the shawl in the corral. He turned around and started back, even though the bull was practically standing on top of the shawl, pawing the ground and snorting angrily.

"Better to face the bool than Mamacita eef I let anything happen to her new red shawl," he groaned.

Papacito crept toward the huge beast, trying not to arouse him. Finally, he was close enough to reach a trembling hand toward the cloth. He clutched a corner of the scarlet shawl and pulled it slowly.

The minute the material moved, the bull charged toward Papacito. The shawl fluttered into the air. Papacito turned quickly so that the bull's sharp horns would not rip the cloth, and the shawl circled around his legs, executing as perfect a pass with the cape as any matador in any arena. And each time Papacito tried to capture the shawl, it floated around him exactly like a matador's cape.

To Pancho and Paco, who were watching from the safety of the corral gate, it looked as if Papacito was really taming the bull and not just trying to keep himself and Mamacita's shawl away from the bull's sharp horns.

"Olé! Olé!" They cheered loudly as Papacito succeeded in gathering the shawl into his arms and subduing the charging bull.

Papacito walked slowly back to the corral gate. "The shawl! I deed eet!" he sighed, grateful that he had been able to save Mamacita's new red shawl.

"Si, Papacito! You deed!" Little Pancho Vanilla smiled. "You proved you are a great matador, even if you only had a lady's shawl instead of a real cape."

YOUR FUTURE

©1970 BY WESTERN PUBLISHING COMPANY, INC.

AS A CHEMIST

A fascinating limitless future awaits you if you choose to be a chemist. The world and everything in it, including the earth, itself, is of interest to these men of science. Chemists usually work in laboratories, experimenting and testing to determine the physical properties of natural substances. They also test reactions of substances to each other, all in an attempt to improve our world products. To be a chemist, you must be interested in physics and chemistry and be able to solve complex algebra equations. You must also be a careful and painstaking worker in order to perform exacting chemical operations in the laboratory and to devise detailed methods for new experiments. Being able to sense fine differences in colors and odors is also very important. To obtain a bachelor's degree in chemistry, a full-time four-year college course is required. There are many branches of chemistry, including: organic chemists, who deal with living matter, such as wood; inorganic chemists, who deal with minerals, metals, etc.; analytical chemists, who make precise measurements of the quality and quantity of chemical elements; biochemists who study the chemical actions occurring in plants and animals. Within these branches, there are many subdivisions, such as teaching, developing new products, industrial use of chemical products, controlling material and production, etc. The graduate chemist can follow many paths with starting salaries of about $7000 a year.

AS AN AIRLINE STEWARDESS

You will find the whole world at your feet if you choose to be an airline stewardess! A life filled with excitement, world travel, and interesting adventures will be yours! An airline stewardess must be a high school graduate, at least nineteen and one-half years old, and five feet and two inches to five feet and ten inches tall. She must enroll in the airline's training course for six weeks, during which time she will be taught her duties, including how to maintain good relationships with passengers and what to do in emergencies. Her first flights will be supervised by experienced head stewardesses. The stewardess boards the plane about forty-five minutes before take-off and makes sure that the cabin and galley are in order. She must supervise the food and beverage storage. When the passengers board the plane, she greets them, directs them to their seats, and checks the passenger list. She helps the passengers with their coats and hats and makes certain that all seat belts are fastened. She demonstrates the use of oxygen masks, in case of an emergency. During the flight, the stewardess serves food and beverages and generally sees to the welfare of the passengers. Should a passenger become ill, she can help with minor care and medication. At the end of the flight, she must file a flight report. The duties of a stewardess are strenuous, but it is ideal work for those who love to travel. Salaries start at about $420 a month, with excellent opportunity for advancement.
